The beautiful Princess Mollykett will be leading the parade.

At 11 o'clock the parade will start and the booths and activities on the Common will be ready for all.

At 11:45 awards will be presented for the three best floats. Remember the theme this year is "Smile".

1 p. m. soap box car awards.
2 p. m. Doll contest.
3 p. m. Burlap bag races.
4 p. m. Bicycle Race.
5:30 to 6:30 p. m. Baked bean supper at the Congregational Church—where the stereophonic solid state AM-FM tape and record player and slalom water ski will be awarded at 6 o'clock.

The sponsors would like representatives from all groups having booths, tables, etc., to meet on the Common Friday at 5 p. m.—this is very important.

Don't forget the new big surprise ride for the kids plus many more. There will be a continuous game party inside the fire station for those who like to play.

Continued music

Dvot Diggers in an attempt to gain ground on the first place team. More golfers are needed to play as spares. Games begin at 5 p. m. on Thursday night. Anyone appearing to play will be assigned a match if at all possible.

League standings at mid season are: Pete Young's Dvot Diggers, 42 points; Charlie Keoske's Stump Jumpers, 37 points; Ben Warner's Sand Blasters, 33 1/2 points; Sam Timberlake's Wood Whackers, 20 points.

your week ahead

BY DR. A.W. DAMIS

Forecast Period: July 23 - July 29, 1972

ARIES
Mar. 21 - Apr. 19

According to your chart, this cosmic cycle finds you much too busy to worry about a chronic emotional problem. Incidentally, heading toward a "get rich scheme" is likely.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 - May 20

It seems as though hidden animosity will burst into an open flame! The point? Try to avoid an associate who is attempting to provoke you.

GEMINI
May 21 - June 20

Over indulgence is in the general scheme of things for most members of your sign. One other thing - control the tendency to have too many irons on the fire.

MOONCHILD
June 21 - July 22

Being thin-skinned and over-reactive to criticism seems to criss-cross your chart; especially, with the opposite sex.

LEO
July 23 - Aug. 22

A tough schedule seems to be in the offering. Nonetheless, a subtle chain of events will lead you into greater rewards and less responsibility.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

This happens to be one of those cosmic cycles when most members of your sign can do no wrong. So, look forward to unexpected gains with the opposite sex and greater affluency.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 - Oct. 22

For those under your sign, so inclined, the temptation to become involved in a triangle is likely. Other Librans must differentiate between opportunity and temptation.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

At least once, during the present cosmic cycle, you will leap to a faulty conclusion. Furthermore, be extremely cautious about giving an associate advice.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

Believe it or not, overwork shows in your chart. Avoid trying to make up for lost time. Most members of your sign are error prone during the present cosmic cycle.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

Whatever you do - don't rely on an associate. According to prevailing stellar patterns, there's very little help coming your way through teamwork or "lucky breaks."

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

Boredom with daily routine and over-concern about a member of the opposite sex seems to be in the scheme of things. This happens to be one of those cycles when pleasure will supersede business.

PISCES
Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

Chances are, or the probability is high, that you will be in an environment or a group that is different, unique or bizarre!

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corrae.
The state of Maine is best known in its summer dress. Now at mid-July our season has begun to assert itself. Have you noticed how the brown-eyed Susans have appeared in the neglected meadows and along the roadsides? Look closely at their eyes and you will note that they are a purplish-brown while the petals have a rich golden color.
The farmers are busy in their hay fields but the weather has been most discouraging; a load ready to go in and the rain comes.
As I stood among the hay bales one day and helped a bit, I looked across the valley and was reminded of the change in the manner of haying today. Marion Olson's "Haying Time" in rhyme describes it well.
"As the mower and team cut a path round the field,
The green fragrant hay to the sickle did yield.
Windrows were made by the wire lined rake

And the bare stubbled field was left in its wake. . . .
The farmers stood anxiously scanning the skies;
In the warm summer sun the shocks cured and dried. . . .
By pulley and ropes the fork ran to a track,
Then down from the roof to the burdened hay rack.
The teeth of the fork bit into the hay
And a huge golden shock was soon on its way
Up to the rafters as far as allowed,
By lever released fell into the mow.
I was also reminded of the disappearing clearings where farms have gone back to the forests.
Then from high up viewing the valley it was a place to linger, a place of enjoyment itself. The bee drone in the clover field, the stretch of mountains, and the ordinary pond below. I had passed this spot dozens of times and hardly given it a second thought. But today with a change in the angle of light, or the formation of clouds, this same view became more than ordinary. It was transformed from "just a pond" to a place of beauty and I realized what the light from above can do to our world below.

I listened and an unknown something sang sweetly above the drone and buzz of wings. The warm sweet fragrance was everywhere.
The click of the machine, and the bales kept dropping as the driver gazed out upon the field, watched his course, and smelled the sweet fragrance.
Butterflies traced erratic courses above the moving grass. Flocks of black birds, swirled and veered, and dropped to a landing among the bales.
Evening came; the glow was dying as the sun disappeared behind the hills rimming the valley.
On the lawn the breeze was refreshing. The day had gone by, the day of flowers and sunshine. Where earlier the clouds had drifted was now a starlit world. Here and there was heard the song of the white throat, the thrush, and the twitter of other birds as they made ready for the night. My "chippy" came again and again for his "hand out" then he too went home for the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holt and Danny Windsor, were week end visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt's. Other callers this week were Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Chase, Rena Bacon, West Paris; Ella Whitney, Oxford; Lena Pearson, Amesbury, Mass.
Verna Libby, Westbrook, visited her sister, Doris Hayes, a few days.
Louise DiArenzo and several girls are vacationing here at the DiArenzo cottage. They are from Pennsylvania.
Attending the supper at Hunt's Corner Thursday were: Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bowen, Doris Hayes, Edna Morris, Fay Holt, Verna Libby, Anna Jarvenpaa, Katie Tammien, Ruth Hastings, Colista Morgan.

A beautiful rainbow arched overhead late one afternoon this week. It was complete and brilliant with all colors of the spectrum sharp and clear and well defined.
Vernon and Milton Inman and families are at Cathedral of the Pines for a week.
Mr. and Mrs. Muel Whitman spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan and on Thursday left for their home in Pales-tine, Tex. Other callers were Jeri and Danny Holt, Windsor; Ella Whitney, Oxford; Lena Pearson, Amesbury, Mass.; Rena Bacon, West Paris.
Karen Hakala visited her aunt, Mrs. Richard Ham and family at Greenville several days.
Visitors at Edla Tamlander's were Mrs. Elsie Hubbard, Mary Hill, and two other friends from Temple.
Mr. and Mrs. Norman Millett and family attended a family reunion on Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Edna Lawrence's.

Jean Millett, Maureen and Stephen, spent several days at the Poland camp at Concord Pond in their grandmother at West Park. Dorothy Curtis spent the week at West Peru with Mrs. Audrey B.

SYMPTOMS OF DUTCH ELM DISEASE SLOW TO SHOW THIS SEASON

This spring with prolonged cool and wet weather during the growing season, our trees produced green and lush foliage. As you will remember, the month of June and early July were extremely wet. Many people have commented on how healthy our elms and other shade trees appear at this time.

"Don't let this fool you", says John Chadwick, State Shade Tree Specialist. This is the kind of year when all kinds of insects and disease problems could develop. The usual yellow flagging associated with newly diseased infected elms have been slow in showing. But, Mr. Chadwick reports, "It will take only a short period of warm, dry weather which will hasten the showing of the disease and associated symptoms."

All municipal officials and property owners are cautioned not to become complacent by the up-to-now lack of Dutch elm disease symptoms. He goes on to suggest that each community should be carefully scouted and elms showing yellowing or "flags" should be marked for immediate removal and proper disposal to prevent further spread of the disease to nearby healthy elms.

Recently publicized remedies for control of the disease are still in the experimental stage which leaves only sanitation as the basic and most effective control measure. State financial assistance is still available to municipalities. For more information write the Maine Forestry Department, State House, Augusta, Maine.

very few can see this falls as it takes a long walk through it is not so wild, as it is really a series of small falls. Rumford spoiled by manufacture, as have Island Falls and many others.

Snow's Falls has beauty,
grandeur and history all wrapped up together, and, as is true of most all history of the early pioneers, there is also tragedy.

Conflicting stories leave us
much to desire of the history,
but one written in 1824 by Hon Elijah L. Hamlin, and published in the Oxford Ob server, printed at Paris Hill, is taken as the the most authentic.

Mr Hamlin states that two men, a Mr Stinchfield and a Capt Snow, their given names have been lost in history, came from New Gloucester to hunt
and trap in the wilderness around the falls. They built their camp on the east side of the river, probably quite near the present camping area.

A party of Indian warriors,
thought to have come from Canada, came upon the camp and Snow, who would not surrender, was killed. Stinch field was taken prisoner and travelled to Lake Umbagog, where they were joined by another raiding party.

On the way Stinchfield managed to escape, and finally found his way back home. A party went from New Gloucester, and finding Snow's remains, buried them there and erected a high cairn of rock which can be seen today.

The topography of the area is rugged, the land adjacent to the Falls is rocky and moun

Paris Library Association with the following officers:

Pres. Seth Leslie Curtis
V. Pres. Mrs. David Emmons
Sec. Miss Jennie M. Brown
Treas. Samuel W. Dunham
Librarian James W. Rams-

Five trustees were elected as follows:
C. Herbert Young
Lewis Bert Andrews
Mrs. Hannibal G. Brown
Mrs. Samuel B. Locke
Rev. John C. Andrews

At first money and books were subscribed. They wrote a Constitution, By-Laws, and Rules and Regulations.

The second librarian was George W. Bryant and the books were kept in the Post Office where he was postmaster. He was succeeded by Ebenezer B. Humphrey, who had the books in his hardware store. Then in 1899 the books were kept in C. Howard Lane's store on the corner of Main and Railroad Streets. The library was moved from there to the Store of Israel F. Emmons and Mrs. Fannie Emmons was appointed librarian, with her daughter, Bertha Emmons, assistant.

In these early years the members paid 25 cents per year. In the following year, 1894, Mrs. Emmons resigned her office and in turn received a vote of thanks for her services (as other librarians had received in the past), and then the library was moved to the home of Erastus K. Cummings, with his daughter Mrs.
Hattie Davis, for librarian. The records show that Mrs. Fred Scott was also librarian about this time.

Black Girl Won Praise For School Work In Rumford's 1885 Town Report

By Everett K. Martin
In these days of such problems as school desegregation, bussing, racism, civil rights and equal opportunity, it is interesting to note that in 1885 in the town of Rumford a black girl, who had come from the South with her family, was singled out by a school agent as a fine example of what other scholars could accomplish if they would show the same industry and application.

Mrs. Teresa Picard, historian of the Greater Rumford Historical Society, ran across some material in old town reports which she passed on to the writer as of interest in these times as compared to those days.

In the 1885 Town Report the report of the year in School District No. 9, (East Rumford) was written by Albert Virgin, agent. In those days of rural schools, each was in a district supervised by an agent.

Mr. Virgin reported: "Miss Blanche A. Abbott met with great success in the summer term. She belongs to a family of teachers and they all are faithful in every detail of school work. Mr. R. E. McAllister of Paris taught the winter term. The school was only fair in order and progress term."

The scholars are mostly too young to advance without great effort on the part of teachers. Among the older ones the progress was better. There was a colored girl in attendance who came from the South last summer, knowing her letters. No one can read readily in the reader, and write a letter. Our more fortunate scholars would only be as industrious as this honest girl there was no poor teachers known to me to congratulate this girl's brilliant success and ask who may follow me to the right hand of felicitations and help her on in her search for knowledge."

A little research reveals back in 1885 there were families of colored people moving northward and girl, Mary Mathews, was of such a family. She apparently not strong enough to go further, remained in Rumford and attended school here. Her death occurred in 1887 when she was 16 years old.

As a pupil in school she had been about six years older than the other children in her fact which apparently had read in such a comparatively short time.

On Road, Bikeway or Trail, Bike Safety Is Up to You

Bicycle safety is everybody's business, and accidents can happen anywhere, whether you are cycling around the block, on a bike path or trail, or across the country.

There are two principal elements to safe cycling, a safe bike to begin with, and safe driving procedures on the part of the cyclist.

If your bike has the BMA '66 seal affixed to the seat post just under the saddle, you know that it has been tested by an independent testing laboratory to meet the safety and manufacturing standards of the Bicycle Manufacturers of America. That's a good place to start.

But any bike, regardless of its make or age, should be inspected frequently to make sure it is in sound working order. Check to make sure there is no glass or loose parts in the tires. Make sure the lights are working, as well as the brakes. Stop time, and don't have a drink of alcohol before you get on the bike.

Have your bike checked by a professional bike repair shop. A little preventive maintenance is worth the cost.

Make sure that you are in your bike seat, and that you are wearing your seat belt. In all 50 states, it is considered a crime to ride a bike without a seat belt. Here are some of the rules of the road:

1. Obey all traffic laws, red lights, stop signs, etc.
2. KEEP RIGHT. Stay in the right lane, unless you are passing.
3. For night riding, have a white light in front and a state approved reflector in back. Reflectors are also required on pedals and wheels.
4. Slow down on curves and proceed with caution.
5. Always give way to pedestrians.
6. Watch out for cars turning into traffic.

Echoed. Six major

Too many for any one

Conners and Tompall and the Bill Clement, emcee for the statements are the opinions and

One of the six performers was Canadians. Stompin' Tom

Born in Saint John, New Brunswick, Conners lived with his parents until he was 16 in St. John, Prince Edward Island. His love of music came early and now twenty albums later, Conners is at the peak of his career in Canada.

Montana Slim and Hank
Snow are legendary. Wilf
Snow, as he is known outside the United States, is originally from Nova Scotia. He left home at an early age for Alberta and by 1933 had a job with CBS radio network
in New York. At the same time, he picked up the handle,
"Montana Slim" given him by a radio announcer. With his songs to his writing partner, Montana Slim helped with Del Reeves band, he played several of his songs, in cluding them with a bit of his own adding the in

did himself as an old

Reeves and The Ramblin' Devils are no strangers to the stage. Another native of Nova Scotia, Hank is also an accomplished guitarist. He has a quiet dignity that you think he possessed
when he made his first recording. "The Prisoner"

Portrait of Two Pros

Tom Conners made his debut,
belting out Dick Curless's famed "Tombstone Every Mile." Whether one liked it or not, because we are so familiar with the original version, it was refreshing to hear another artist sing this difficult song.

Why the Stompin'? Because his habit of stomping his left foot on the floor had ruined many carpets where he had per formed, he started using a quarter inch thick plywood
"stompin' board." Conners carried the approximately square yard long board on stage in Portland, placed his left foot on it and backed by his two Roving Cowboys, stomped

through not only his own compositions but some comic interpretations.

As for his personality

everyone who talked with him felt loving him. There is no facade to this man. Appearing second on the bill, Stompin' Tom waited until the end of the show, almost madly, to talk with fans and sign autographs.

4-H'ers Work to Conserve America's Natural Resources

SPECIAL — Young people today are firmly committed to their survival and that of this planet. They are involved with the problems and seek solutions to air and water pollution, garbage disposal, survival of threatened animal and bird life. In fact they want to conserve all of America's natural resources.

Among the active and concerned young people are more than 320,000 enrolled in the 4-H conservation of natural resources program.

The effectiveness of their work is reflected in a case study of one young man who worked four years in 4-H conservation, sponsored nationally by John Deere and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

John J. Silvia Jr., 18, of Middletown, R.I., concentrated his efforts on preserving and enhancing the life and natural habitat of animals, birds, insects and vegetation. And he skillfully persuaded others around him by word and deed to become involved. In order to carry his conservation message more forcefully to other 4-H members and to various civic groups, the youth took up the 4-H public speaking project. He used his 4-H photography project to tell the story of the need for all people to be concerned and do something about conservation.

As a result of his interest and his effective teaching of younger 4-H members, his 4-H club earned special recognition in 1971.

Now a University of Maine freshman planning a career in wildlife management and conservation, Silvia also earned one of six educational scholarships of $700 each provided by John Deere in 1971.

Again in 1972, John Deere is making available to members a maximum of five medals of honor per year and an all-expense-paid trip to the 51st National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 23-27 for the state winner.

At the National 4-H Congress, representatives of the donor will present six educational scholarships of $500 each to national winners.

Clubs carrying on outstanding conservation programs receive certificates of merit. And a $50 cash award is provided for one outstanding 4-H conservation program. This award is used for further 4-H conservation projects.

For information on local 4-H conservation projects, contact the county agent or the state 4-H

why we are so delighted that beautiful ballad was written by a friend in Lewiston, Eva

All in all, it was a most

Snow's Falls

above the falls, eroded a narrow gorge down through to the valley, in some places so narrow one could step across and so deep one can scarcely see the bottom.

The volume of water must have been much greater at that time, as there were many tributaries carrying water to the Little Androscoggin, when have since dried up, caused by the clearing of land along the settlement at Snow's Falls and river.

The other story of Snow's
Falls concerns the Indian Moll Locket who used to travel in the spring and fall through the Androscoggin Valley from Gray to Magalloway, always carrying her herb medicine and stopping with friendly people along the way. She was credited with saving the life of Hannibal Hamlin when he was a small child and it is known that his family thought very highly of her.

This story was, that she stopped for a lodging on a cold stormy night at the small whoever it was that she asked would not let her in; this angered her so that she called a curse on the place, saying nothing would ever prosper

there.

Be that true or not, it is a fact that many enterprises have been started there only to end
in failure.

A chair factory burned as did a brown paper. Later a shoe factory was operated there for a short time, but nothing really prospered
although the large building
and bridge across the falls were standing well into the century. A road from the bridge led to the upper end of High St. in South Paris and farmers used to travel both ways from West Paris to South Paris.

The Grand Truck Railroad
now known as the Canadian Pacific skirts the edge of the falls so near one can look down into the great gorge and rocky cavern.

Since Rt. 26 has been im proved, a beautiful camp sit has been made at the side of the Falls, and many take advantage of the wonderfu
view to picnic at the site, som
little knowing all the histor centered there.

Chrysler Sports film library offers exclusive highlights of top events

Detroit—Program chairmen, searching for an exciting hour-to-appeal 30 minutes of entertainment, can find it in the new Chrysler Sports Film Library.

The library, reflecting Chrysler sponsorship of television coverage of the nation's major sports events, provides exclusive access to edited sound, color films of the same sports spectaculars.

New 16mm films now available in the Chrysler Sports Film Library include: SUPER BOWL VI—Dallas Cowboys finally win the big one and bury ghosts of past Super Bowl defeats with a convincing win over the surprising Miami Dolphins.

FINAL STEPS TO SUPER BOWL—Highlights from the NFC and AFC 1971-72 championship games that pitted San Francisco against Dallas, and Miami against Baltimore in final struggle for Super Bowl spot.

NFL '71-'72—With superb defenses reducing the potential for quick scores via the aerial "bomb", the 1971-72 pro football season became the year of the running back with more thousand-yard club members than ever before. Filmed review of season explores offensive adjustments that countered teams who made it to the top in the past on iron-ribbed defense alone.

SUPER BOWL V—The classic match-up between the solid, conservative eleven and the explosive but erratic team, pits Baltimore and Dallas in the climax to the 1970-71 season.

THAT ONE VINTAGE YEAR—The fabulous 1970-71 NFL season that saw division championships decided on the last day of the regular season is reviewed with excerpts from all six division championship games.

DUEL IN THE DUST—1970-

71 AFC championship struggle between Baltimore and Oakland matches two "old pro" quarterbacks, Johnny Unitas of the Colts, and George Blanda of the '49ers.

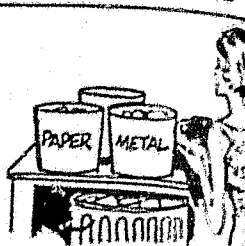

BOB HOPE DESERT CLASSIC—Switching from gridiron wars to the lush greens of professional golf, the seventh current Sports Library offering capsules all the action on the links and provides a rare look at visiting celebrities from sports and show business touring the course with the game's top pros.

Other films will be added to the Library as a result of Chrysler Corporation's continuing sponsorship of major sporting events.

The films may be booked by contacting: Chrysler Film Sports Library, Modern Talking Picture Service, 2323 New Hyde Park Road, New Hyde Park, L. I., New York 11040.

Public Library

for a few months and on April 30, 1898, we again moved the library on its way to the home of Samuel T. White, where it stayed for 13 years. Mrs. White as librarian.

December 7, 1900, Mrs. M. Bates became involved in the library and added it with 50 volumes of books, and Mrs. Bates offered to give a sum to the number of one-year subscriptions given by interested persons. This offer for an indefinite period the plan was kept up for a number of years—adding to various sums $10 to $25 or $30 per year were duplicated by Mrs. Bates. In May 1905, we find the library increased to 499 books and with 36 members. Recent years, at various times from the very beginning, funds were raised by giving dramas and suppers, and in 1910, the library had outgrown the space allowed it in S. Bates' store, so it again moved out and into a separate building especially prepared for it. Hiram W. Dunham's office, over the telephone office, remained until the late 1920s.

At that time, the librarian was Edith Day, who was the first to serve in the special building over Dunham's block over the telephone office. This was the time rent was paid for the library.

According to the records, Edith Day was librarian until possibly Mrs. W. E. Bates in 1914. Then for years the choice of a librarian was left for the town. The records do not show, however, but a report in each year. In 1917, Mrs. Emery was librarian, possibly Mrs. Thelma and Mrs. Kathleen Bates served. Mrs. B. C. Bates served for two years. In December, 1920, Miss C. Stuart, from the library, Augusta, came and recatalogued the books according to the then methods.

It was made a free library and some money was given to it by the Village. The library was located as the West Paris Library on August 25, the same year came from the Bates. Mr. Lewis C. Bates gave a bequest from the estate of Ella M. Bates, the which was to be used for buying books.

The books were stored in a room, then moved to a new, and present, building. Soon after the death of M. Mann the news reached us that he had left a lot of land and money which to build a building and a sum for the library. On September 4, it was officially given to the Library. And with it, M. Mann generously gave his father's wish, doubling the sum for the beautiful building which was given in 1925. This library building was designed by Gibbs & Pulsifer, of Lewiston, who drafted the plan according to a fancy of Mr. Pulsifer and it has the resemblance of an old castle. The foundation is irregular in shape, but at its largest points it measures 35 ft. long by 25 ft. wide by 20 ft. high. Over the door is a large tablet of granite on which is inscribed: "Arthur L. Mann Memorial Library" who was Lewis M. Mann's elder son who died several years before this date.

As I interpret the records, there have been other large donations to the library. Clyde Fifield gave $1000 from the estate of A. Estella Fifield; Ruth Tucker $2972.87; and George Jackson also gave. Through the years there have been many small gifts of money, books, wood, as well as service given. In 1928 a Baseball picture and trophies were given to be placed in the library. Also the same year a clock was given in memory. In 1933 we received our first set of encyclopedias. At the time SAD 17 was formed we received the school trophies.

In 1937 a pay shelf was used—after a book was paid for, it went on the regular shelf with the other books. In 1962, new drapes were hung; 1963 a new furnace was installed as well as new bookcases and a new card file. In 1966 we had a new children's table with two chairs built for small bodies. It has been observed that many adults have enjoyed this set as well as the little ones! In 1970 the Grange gave us a dehumidifier which has taken the destroying dampness from the basement and opened for us a much needed added space.

Although the library building was given to the citizens of the town of West Paris, many people still did not feel that it belonged to them. Therefore, at town meeting in 1971, the town officially accepted the library and the governing of the same. The deed was given to the selectmen of the town. New trustees were appointed and they met with the selectmen, then held two more meetings, the result of which was a newly painted interior, ceiling, walls and floor, plus two new bookcases which have been placed in the basement. A table, stand and some chairs have been moved to the basement and a number of books have been placed down there for the use of our borrowers. A new light was also installed. This has given us much needed room upstairs so that the books are not so badly crowded and one can walk around without squeezing through small areas. More work is needed in the future, for some kind of new ceiling should be made and something done to the stone walls. We do hope that many will come in and see how our library now looks, take an active interest in it, and see that future needs are met to keep our library looking in such a way as to reveal our appreciation of these many gifts that have been given to us.

Travel Do's and Don'ts For Young Americans

Each year, thousands of young Americans travel abroad for study, work or kicks. For most, it's great. But for an increasing number of travelers, it's a "bust."

To help young Americans avoid the problems of foreign travel, the U.S. State Department has just published a pamphlet which offers some helpful suggestions on planning a successful trip abroad.

The pamphlet, on sale by the U.S. Government Printing Office for 20 cents, provides useful information on passports and visas, travel in Eastern Europe, vaccination requirements, charter flights, study and work programs and the role U.S. embassies and consulates play in protecting the rights of U.S. citizens overseas.

Reporter Relaxes In Sauna

by Chuck Huhta

Sitting in the waiting room at the sauna last week a man whom I'd never seen before began interrogating me, presumably because he'd never seen me before either. When I mentioned the Advertiser-Democrat he said "You work for the paper, eh? Why don't you write an article about the sauna?"

"Well, I've thought of it," I replied, "but I always assumed that people around these parts already knew about saunas."

The owner of the place hearing this piped up, "No, no! That's not true! Most people don't know what a sauna bath is. They think it's a communal bath like the Japanese have or a Turkish bath, but you'd be surprised how many people really have no idea of what saunas are."

Aha! A golden opportunity in American journalism looms overhead, I thought. Syndicated columnist Inez Robb had written up her only experience with saunas a few years back, but her impressions would turn off even the heartiest Finn.

I recall my father's burning a slow burn as he read Miss Robb's description of her first and last sauna bath in which she claimed to have been baked like a lobster, suffering a lot of pain and somehow managing to escape the true pleasure that a good sauna bath can give.

It's time to shed the true light about saunas.

Part I

In the first place, a sauna bath is as private as you like it.

The typical commercial sauna has from four to eight individual "hot rooms" which may be occupied comfortably by one to five people at a time. Adjoining each hot room are two dressing rooms, two per room so that after one party has finished their bath and is dressing, another party from the other dressing room may use the hot room thus keeping the hot room occupied more of the time. When you're done in the hot room you yell something appropriate to the cashier like "Number four's ready!" so he can stoke up the wood sauna stove and move a new party in while you dress, undisturbed.

It's as simple as that. If you're shy, come along; if not, bring a friend.

Part II

The object of the sauna is to get cleansed inside and out, become thoroughly relaxed, sweat out poisons stored in the body, lose weight, and gain vast amounts of peace of mind. All this can be accomplished in an hour's time for a nominal fee at a public sauna or for free if you have an obliging friend who has his own private sauna.

Part III

Practices during the sauna bath vary according to the individual, but certain methods are standard.

To begin, after undressing, you enter the hot room completely naked. Usually, any garment or accessory worn in the heat, even jewelry, will be irritating.

Once in the hot room you first draw yourself a tub of lukewarm water. There are several tubs, a cold water faucet, and hose, a barrel of very hot water next to the sauna stove and a small pot to serve as a ladle. You use the tub of water you've mixed and the ladle to drench yourself occasionally and to cool down if you get too hot too fast.

There are benches to sit or lie on, but if you don't squirt some cool water on them when you first get in you're liable to get too warm a reception.

Once settled on a bench with a tub of lukewarm water handy, you can begin the sauna—take the ladle and toss some water from your tub onto the hot rocks on the stove (a bit at a time or you'll simmer yourself to displeasure). Do this occasionally, wet yourself down occasionally, wash up and shower in the cold shower occasionally (watch your heart!), even beat yourself with cedar switches.

The cedar switches are used to increase circulation, further induce sweating, and will pleasantly scent the hot room if you steam them on the rocks.

Public saunas will provide their customers with towels, washcloth and soap.

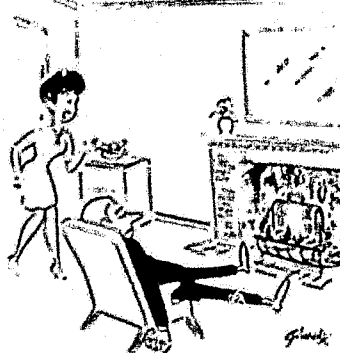

Conclusion

Undoubtedly each sauna bath enthusiast has his own special technique for getting relaxed and clean. You will learn by discovery. If at first you feel uncomfortable in the sauna, wait until you're all done and dressed before passing judgment. The relaxing effect of the sauna doesn't really strike you until you get out.

If you're set to take a sauna bath now there are many public saunas in the western Maine area. At least one sauna in the area offers a special attraction—a pool to dive into to cool you off after your bath (you must wear a suit, but they rent them if you forget yours.) Have a good Bath!

Patio Serves Outdoor Life

A patio adds a charming party room, living room or room to a home, simply by building a deck of rugged, free western wood along the house.

Economical outdoor floors of wood doesn't crack, cool without reflecting heat, dries quickly after rain or up with garden hose.

Patios, partially covered with sunshade or protected from wind by a handsome screen, can be designed to complement the complete house styles.
